

Win one of two Cygnett GrooveTime's worth $332!

You'll never have to wake up to the sound of crappy music or sad, depressing DJs again with the Cygnett GrooveTime iPod speaker with alarm clock.

BEEP... BEEP... BEEP... That's the sound of most people's alarm clocks waking them up in the morning to go to work; to start another day wedging their nose against the grindstone.

Others wake up to the radio. It's like alarm clock Russian roulette – you have a one in three chance of getting either a crappy song; DJs trying to crack jokes without realising that no matter what you say, it won't be funny if you wake somebody up with it; or ads. Nobody likes ads, especially as a theme song to their morning.

A much better option is waking up to your own music, like that conveniently stored on your iPod. Australian company Cygnett's GrooveTime iPod dock allows you to do exactly that. What's more, you can use it as a replacement for your stereo.

If you want to rid yourself from the horror of regular alarm clocks, we have two GrooveTimes to give away. Simply send an email to t3@derwenthoward.com.au with "Cygnett Competition" in the subject line and tell us, in 25 words or less, "What song would you like to wake up to?"

To enter email t3@derwenthoward.com.au, Subject: "Cygnett comp" and tell us in 25 words or less:

WHAT SONG WOULD YOU LIKE TO WAKE UP TO?

RULES: The closing date is 25/10/2006. Prizes cannot be redeemed for cash. This is a game of skill, not chance. Full terms and conditions available from Derwent Howard reception.

T3 Magazine
October, 2006

